

The dream continued. Maggy Dalany tossed and turned trying to awaken. Another vision appeared with a familiar face, causing her heart to pound with hope. Had he returned to rescue her from this demon's den? She saw him now clearly taking her by the hand in the moon's full light. He held her close, his hand reaching out gently caressing her hair. For just a moment, she reveled in his strength and warmth. She jerked back from his touch afraid to return his caress. Then he turned, walking away, never looking back. Did he know what she'd done, been forced to do, while he was gone? An evil presence hovered with a grasp that bound her so she could not breathe. She felt so desperately alone. The darkness of that night seemed to pull her back to the spirit that had demanded she do such a thing. Would she ever break free from this evil bondage? In the night shadows, the cold wind whipping through her soul, she cried out to the stars, "Oh Tyson, will you hate me forever?"
