

With Grace in Their Hearts: A Glimpse into the Hearts of the Hymn Writers (Devotionals Book 4)

In these lyrical vignettes, you will step through time and into the hearts and lives of hymnodists of the past. Come and be refreshed and renewed as you experience the constancy, grace and love of an unchanging Heavenly Father in the lives of the Hymnodists and the lives of those whom their words touched. Each vignette ends with an invitation to ponder for the day. A Summer Song Reflections of pastor Joachim Neander in the 1670s The limestone cliffs rise rich and rough and golden in the morning sun. They are riven with small waterfalls that sparkle in their rush to pool at the base of the cliff. Around the pools wildflowers grow in rich profusion. Each one, this morning, carries a shimmering dew-drop diamond in its golden heart. It is my privilege to live here in one of the caves in this wild valley near Mettmann. The breeze is sweet and crisp and seems to whisper of the Lords goodness to me. I am reminded how beautiful and ordered is our kind Lords creation. Who can but praise Him? Truly we have cause to adore Him, He who is our life and salvation. I have written, while in my self-imposed seclusion, hymns of the Lords goodness. I hope, when the authorities again let me enter town, I may share with them these hymns of praise that they might sing, and in singing rejoice, praise and be blessed! Invitation Listen to Praise to the Lord, the Almighty (available at www.lds.org/music). If Joachim Neander asked you to list some blessings to add to his hymn what would you say God has given you? Write them down. Go for a walk in nature and ponder them.
