

Beautiful in Each Season: Devotions for You

People with Alzheimers arent dumb, they just have trouble remembering! Anna Ruth Williamson, Alzheimer patient since 2004. The devotions in Beautiful in Each Season were written with respect for the intellect and spirits of those with dementia. The readings are straightforward but not childish in content, and are appropriate for independent or caregiver supported use. Because music transcends language and speaks directly to the heart, a few lines from familiar hymns are included with each devotion. Many of the conflicts that arise between people with dementia and their caregivers occur because two completely different perspectives must come together in order for harmony to exist. When the patient is a loved one, the caregiver faces not only an increased workload, but also new financial worries and the loss of emotional support as the relationship of the past is redefined. On the patients part, dementia has narrowed perceptions to the degree that there is little awareness or empathy for the struggles of the caregiver. The confusion and disorientation of cognitive dysfunction may result in suspicion and fear-based anger. When both patient and caregiver know and love the Lord, reminders of His steadfast love provide a common ground through which empathy and love can flow. This book can be used either alone or in tandem with the caregivers devotional, My Mom Has Alzheimers: Inspiration and Help for Caregivers (Bridge-Logos Foundation, 2009). As caregivers we must not allow our loved ones to forget Gods love. Linda Born
