

The Power of Value

Your values are the things that you believe are important, and it shows in the way you live and work. They (should) determine your priorities and, deep down, they are probably the measures you use to tell if your life is turning out the way you want it to. When the things that you do and the way you behave match your values, life is usually good you're satisfied and content. But when these don't align with your values, that's when things feel... wrong. This can be a real source of unhappiness.
