Not illustrated. 1886 Excerpt: ...for dessert and boiling. No. 153. Juicy Transparent (Skvosnoi naliv).--A fine grower and true ironclad. A very popular fall apple over a large part of Russia. Mr. Gibb says: This true Russian apple, on account of its good quality, heavy bearing, transparency and beauty, has become widely popular in Russia. Season here, probably September. No. 157. Juicy White (Bielui naliv).--This tree will grow far north, and its habit is to produce heavy annual crops on varied soils. Fruit medium in size, yellow, tender, sub acid. Very good. Season north, September, and here about as early as Yellow Transparent. tNo. 161. Longfield (Langerfeldskoe).--This variety will be specially popular in Central Iowa on account of early and continued bearing of heavy crops of finely-colored, even-sized and good fruit. If picked early in Central Iowa it keeps as well as Grimes Golden or Jonathan. North of the 43d parallel it keeps through winter without special care. Mr. Tuttle, of Baraboo, Wisconsin, says: It is a good a bearer as the Duchess, and the finding of this one variety is worth all the labor and expense I have had in testing Russian apples. We have imported this variety from several sources. tNo. 162. Buschbon (Buschbon).--This is a splendid grower in nursery and orchard. We have not fruited it. Mr. Saunders, as quoted by Charles Gibb, says: A very good summer fruit, somewhat aromatic in flavor. May be valuable far north where only crabs are now grown. No. 164. Heidorn (Polosatoe heidorna). Rather a slow grower, and likely to be valuable at the north. As fruited by Mr. Webster, of Vermont, says Mr. Gibb, it is a very beautiful, large-sized, striped apple of sweet and delicate texture. Season, last of
